About Colleen Mooney

Colleen, a native of St. Paul, MN, is one of seven children. After earning a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Minnesota, she moved to Chicago for a job promotion. While there, she discovered The Second City Training Center, where she began her journey into acting.

She honed her skills in sketch comedy, stand-up, and improvisation, and furthered her studies in various acting techniques. She soon found a passion for film, leading to roles in over 40 local independent films, television series, including Fox's Empire, Chicago P.D. and Showtime's Shameless, as well as commercial and print work.

Colleen is an award-winning actress, earning "Best Actress" in a Comedy Short for We Hate Bob and "Best in Fest" for the dramatic short Home Cooked. After building a strong career in Chicago, she relocated to the Southwest where she landed her first co-star role on Netflix's Chambers, working alongside Uma Thurman and Tony Goldwyn.

Colleen has since added on a new chapter as a filmmaker, with her first film, The Raking Society, garnering her film two "Best Supporting Actor" nominations and a win. She is currently working on her next film, The Little House Matchmaker, and hopes to turn The Raking Society into a TV series.
